HOW TO READ YOUR MONTHLY CREDIT CARD STATEMENT

Reviewing your monthly statement is an important part of managing your finances. It allows you to spot any errors or signs of identity theft, and provides a spending track record that comes in handy when planning a budget.

Your statement will look different from the example shown here, but will still contain the information below.

TAKE A TOUR OF YOUR MONTHLY STATEMENT

- 1 Statement Date: The date your billing cycle closed. Your statement only lists activity from your most recently completed billing cycle.
- 2 Due Date: Your payment due date generally follows a grace period (usually 20 days after your billing cycle closes). Missing your due date could translate into late fees or an increased interest rate.
- 3 New Regular Balance: Also listed as Current Balance or New Balance. This is the money you owe the credit card company on the date your statement was issued. However, you have until your due date to pay it without penalty.

- 4 Minimum Payment: This is the amount of money you are required to pay by the due date in order to avoid late fees and other penalties. If you make the minimum payment, you will still be charged interest on the rest of your balance. By making the minimum payment, you prolong the time it will take to pay off your debt.
- 5 Transactions: Credit card activity such as purchases, fees, refunds and credits are listed here. Double-check that the amounts are accurate, and keep an eye out for any unauthorized charges.

DON'T FORGET

Paying your balance in full and on time is the best strategy when it comes to using your credit card.
